Public Health Leadership in Times of Change and Challenge

Public health has experienced many challenges over the course of the COVID-19 pandemic. Resources have been stretched to breaking points and polarizing discourse has spilled into health policy. Yet there have been many opportunities demonstrating that leadership during these times of change and challenge is key to improving public health.

Please join the University of Alberta, School of Public Health and the Alberta Public Health Association (APHA) in welcoming Professor Adalsteinn (Steini) Brown, Dean of the Dalla Lana School of Public Health, University of Toronto, to hear how public health leadership during challenging times of change is key to protecting and improving public health and well-being.

Professor Adalsteinn (Steini) Brown

Prof. Brown is Dean of the Dalla Lana School of Public Health at the University of Toronto where he focuses on performance measurement in health systems and the use of evidence and data in public policy. He has worked closely with the Ontario Ministry of Health and Long-term Care (MOHLTC) and other government and international agencies and has served as Assistant Deputy Minister in MOHLTC and Assistant Deputy Minister in the Ministry of Research and Innovation.
